Absolutely Sure of 278 and May Secure 333, or as High

183 MAXIMUM FOR DAVIS

LaFollette Cannot Receive More Than 76 and Perhaps Much Less; Is Losing
Strength to Davis in Eastern
And to Coolidge in Western States.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1924, by The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Calvin Coolidge will be elected to the presidency next Tuesday by an electoral vote so decisive that he may carry to victory scores of congressional and state nominees of the Republican party.

This is the writer's conviction based upon a study of the electoral and in no sense represents an individual like or dislike for any of the candidates or their causes. For, having most of the time been a resident of the District of Columbia, this correspondent never has been identified with any political party and is conscious of no partisanship.

But a political campaign in which 25,000,000 people participate is no huge secret and trends of opinion are determinable. Just as the writer was convinced in 1918 of the certainty of the election of Wilson, and in 1920 the triumph of Harding, so this year is presented a table of electoral votes which represents the irreducible minimum below which it is inconceivable that Calvin Coolidge will go and above which it seems almost certain he will ascend, reaching a maximum not far behind the electoral vote of four years ago.

Here are the states which Coolidge is absolutely sure to carry and in the Davis or LaFollette columns are given the states which they may carry and which, for purposes of demonstration only, are taken from Coolidge.

State	Coolidge	LaFollette
Alabama	12	5
Arkansas	12	5
California	13	5
Colorado	9	3
Connecticut	12	5
Delaware	3	1
Florida	12	5
Georgia	12	5
Idaho	12	5
Illinois	26	13
Indiana	13	6
Iowa	12	5
Kansas	12	5
Kentucky	12	5
Louisiana	12	5
Maine	12	5
Maryland	12	5
Massachusetts	12	5
Michigan	13	5
Minnesota	13	5
Mississippi	12	5
Missouri	12	5
Montana	12	5
Nebraska	12	5
Nevada	3	1
New Hampshire	12	5
New Jersey	14	5
New Mexico	12	5
New York	46	13
North Carolina	13	5
North Dakota	12	5
Ohio	20	10
Oklahoma	12	5
Oregon	12	5
Pennsylvania	25	13
Rhode Island	12	5
South Carolina	12	5
South Dakota	12	5
Tennessee	12	5
Texas	20	10
Vermont	12	5
Virginia	12	5
Washington	12	5
West Virginia	12	5
Wisconsin	12	5
Wyoming	12	5
Total	278	183

Only 200 votes necessary for a choice.

While the foregoing table may work out in conformity with the actual voting, the writer does not expect it. Instead he feels that aside from demonstrating conclusively that Calvin Coolidge will be elected, the table does not represent the maximum strength of Coolidge. It does represent the maximum of either Davis or LaFollette.

Now, as to the maximum strength of Coolidge, the writer feels that Minnesota, Iowa, Maryland, Nebraska, Washington, Wyoming and Montana, which represent a total of 55 electoral votes, are almost certain to be cast for the present chief Executive so that the Coolidge total should be at least 333 electoral votes. There is a chance—but only a chance—that Coolidge may capture North Dakota, Missouri and Oklahoma which would add 33 more votes, making a possible 366, which compares well with Harding's 404 because it is a three-cornered race and some of the states now inclined toward LaFollette are normally Republican.

The writer began his trip on September 10 but this year relatively few votes have been changed in the last few weeks. Such changes as there have been may be counted as a recession of LaFollette strength in the West and an increase in the Davis vote in the East. The drift away from LaFollette in the West has only strengthened President Coolidge's opportunities for, until two weeks

ONE SHOT IN KLAN FIGHT AT NILES; GUARD MOBILIZED

Anti-Klanman Is Victim of Bullet; Three Assassins
Are Captured.

GOVERNOR TAKES ACTION

By United Press.

NILES, O., Nov. 1.—Three men, said to be anti-Klanmen, were shot today by a party of men in an automobile, who fired on their victims in the heart of the city shortly before 1 P. M. The wounded man, all of Niles, were Albert Davis, Dominick Pomeroy and Joe Mohan.

The incident was the most serious of a series of clashes between Klan and anti-Klan factions since the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and Knights of the Flaming Circle came to Niles today for large meetings.

Other anti-Klanmen gave chase to the automobile and overtook it. They took a load of rifles from the car. The men riding in the machine were arrested.

The shooting followed numerous disorders since noon yesterday which included the beating of several men, the disrobing of Klanmen by anti-Klanmen, the taking away of guns and badges from special deputy sheriffs and the arrest of 40 men by Niles police.

NILES, Ohio, Nov. 1.—First disorders today were reported at 11 A. M. when an automobile carrying two robed Klanmen was stopped as it passed the field where Flaming Circle members were assembled.

The anti-Klan members tore the robes from the two Klanmen in the car and then permitted them to continue their journey to the other side of the town where the Klan is in session.

NILES, O., Nov. 1.—Klan and anti-Klan factions were at each other's throats in Niles today while many merchants failed to open their shops and houses had a deserted look as though inhabitants had moved out. In Youngstown and Warren state troops awaited call to action.

Trouble between the factions developed serious street fighting during the night. The toll was:

Five men arrested and lodged in the Trumbull county jail at Warren, one man shot from an anti-Klan leader is near death from a bullet wound; bombing in the open fields during the night; an attack upon Colonel L. A. Watkins, Mahoning county Klan political leader by a crowd of anti-Klanmen; several street fights between the opposing factions; disappearance of Mayor Harvey Kessler from Niles.

The mayor was believed to have spent the night at Warren to escape visitors who wished him to act on the matter of stopping a Klan parade to-day. Both the Ku Klux Klan and a rival organization, known as the Knights of the Flaming Circle have conventions here today. Two thousand of the latter were expected by noon.

Dr. B. A. Hart, head of the Klan in Trumbull county, said the advertised bonfire which caused all the trouble would be held as planned at 3 P. M. Sheriff John E. Thomas has been having difficulty getting enough men to act as special deputies.

Trouble between the factions started when advance guards arrived in Niles last evening and there were sporadic outbreaks during the night.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Governor Denney today ordered a regiment of national guardsmen mobilized and held in readiness for immediate call to Niles, Ohio, where Klan riots are reported breaking out.

This action followed private advice that feeling in Niles is running high and that subsequent rioting may be expected momentarily.

The governor gave his order to Adjutant General Henderson whose duty it was to designate which regiment should be mobilized. The units mobilized total approximately 1,100 men.

Ohio LaFollette Club Is Refused Challenge Permit

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 1.—The Ohio Supreme Court today denied the Cuyahoga county LaFollette organization the right to have challengers in the election booths Tuesday. In denying the writ the majority of the court held that the Cuyahoga County Conference for progressive political action is not a political party and therefore not entitled to representation among poll workers.

Rain Middle Next Week; to Be Cool

Pepper Explains Coolidge Silence On Klan Position

By United Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1.—Answering a question as to "Why President Coolidge has failed to answer" the stand of his critics on the Ku Klux Klan issue, Senator George Wharton Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, told an audience here last night:

"Mr. Coolidge is the chief executive whose function is not to denounce citizens or groups of citizens but to enforce the law. A chief executive who undertook to issue manifestos in connection with any group of citizens before they have broken the law would himself be a law-breaker. It would be to inflict punishment when the law was violated he would be false to his oath of office."

"Don't worry about the President's determination to enforce the law."

The question was one propounded by the John W. Davis Club of Princeton University.

VANDERBILT ROAD, MINUS "S" CURVE, WILL OPEN NOV. 7

Last Portion of Concrete Work, Completed October 15, Is Drying Out.

GRADES ARE CUT DOWN

The Vanderbilt-Connellsville road is to be thrown open to the public on November 7. The last bit of work on the newly improved road was completed on October 15. Granting the necessary 21 days to dry, the date of the opening falls on November 7. No celebration for the day has been planned.

With the work completed, the famed "S" curve will be eliminated and together with it the danger of travel from Vanderbilt to Connellsville. Numerous grades on the hills have been cut down and other curves have been eliminated. The entire road is concrete. There is about 1,000 yards of the road that is undergoing the "drying" process.

On various occasions portions of the road have been thrown open. Motorists have been traveling from Vanderbilt to Connellsville by way of the repaired road as far as the old Roberts farm, then detouring towards Adelphi, striking the concrete road in Hickory Bottom.

ORDER OF EASTERN STAR GIVES DELICIOUS DANCE

Prominent among the many social functions of the Halloween season was the annual masquerade dance of the Connelleville Chapter Order of the Eastern Star, held last night at the State Armory. The appointments were beautiful in every detail and the committees in charge deserve great credit for the success of the dance, which was one of the largest and most enjoyable ever given by the order. Approximately three hundred guests, all appearing in gala costumes and clever make-ups, were in attendance. Two judges did not have an easy task in deciding on the most fantastic and the most grotesque costumes, the prize for the former being awarded Miss Sara McElhinney of East Washington avenue, and the latter, Samuel J. Hollen of Mount Brookwood. The selection was made by the judges during the grand march. The decorations were unusually beautiful. The Eastern Star colors, red, white, blue, green and yellow predominated, arches of the colors being arranged over the five windows on each side of the hall. A large hoop, from which was a shower of crepe paper of the prevailing color scheme, was suspended from the ceiling, while four smaller showers decorated the chandeliers.

Dancing was indulged in from 8:30 to 2 o'clock. Kiefer's orchestra rendered all the newest dance numbers and the popular violinist and his musicians were never better. During the grand march a Halloween lunch was distributed. Out of town guests were from Uniontown, Dunbar, Scottsdale and Greensburg.

One Mother Says:
"When I bake apples I introduced a pleasant change by using rhubarb with them, especially if there is doubt about the apples being tart enough to cook well. Remove the core without cutting clear through the apple; fill the cavity with sliced rhubarb and honey and sugar. If small red cinnamon candies are added a new flavor is given and the apples will have a pretty pink color."

REMARKABLE RECOVERY OF MRS. SPINK

Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Full Credit

Minn. June, Wis.—"I was under treatment, but nothing seemed to help me, and I was run-down and so weak that I had to remain in bed much of the time and was like an invalid. I had pains in my abdomen and in the female organs, and my stomach bothered me. My husband and new Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it. After taking one bottle I was able to eat, and after six bottles I was doing my own work, which I had not been able to do for years. I have a new baby who is doing nicely, and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and feeling better than I have for four years. The medicine is surely wonderful and a good thing to have in the house."—Mrs. GEORGE SPINK, Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound reports 98 per cent. benefited. For sale by druggists everywhere.

FOODS FOR AUTUMN DAYS

Even after summer has passed there come days so warm and sultry that heavy, hearty dishes do not appeal to the appetite. Here are a few suggestions for such days:

Jellied Chicken.—Stew a fat old hen until quite tender and use all of the white part of the flesh. Put the meat twice through the meat grinder and then moisten it. Add to the meat the same measure of thick white sauce and when well mixed put through a sieve. Add one tablespoonful of olive oil, one tablespoonful of vinegar, eight tablespoonfuls of apple jelly, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of ground onion. Mix and heat over the fire in the jelly. Oil a mold, pour in the chicken mixture and set in a cold place to harden. Serve garnished with cubes of aspic and parsley.

Apple Jelly.—To make a quart of jelly take four or five chickens or beef bouillon cubes, add to one quart of boiling water, and the juice of half a lemon and five tablespoonfuls of gelatin which has been softened in one cupful of cold water. Season to taste and stir in the whites of three eggs well beaten. Place over the heat and stir constantly until the boiling point is reached, then let stand thirty minutes in a warm place. Strain through a cheesecloth. Put into the icebox to set.

Chicken Aspic.—Take a chicken which has been stewed. Carve the meat into thin slices twice the width of the little finger by the length of it. Cut slices of ham of the same size and shape. Slice three hard-cooked eggs and prepare two tablespoonfuls of mushrooms chopped. Use apple jelly and see that it is well seasoned. Fill the mold in layers and dot with the mushrooms, laying the eggs for the sides and bottom. Let it become firm before turning out. A mold of aspic tinted green and filled with peas, and chopped cooked beets, hard-cooked egg-white, chopped, and any other vegetable which blends well in flavor and color may be used. Serve on lettuce with a rich mayonnaise.

SATURDAY EVENING, NOV. 1, 1936. GIVING COOLIDGE A SUPPORTING CONGRESS.

Making sure the election of President Coolidge to a full term of four years from March 4, next is not the only duty of Republicans on Tuesday. They must also be sure that the Congress that will stand behind him in making his policies effective.

The spectacle presented by the first session of the present Congress, in which blocs of every kind joined with the Democrats in obstructing constructive aid needed legislation, or passed objectionable or unwise measures over President Coolidge's veto, ought never again be presented to the country.

True, the same aggregation of legislative misfits will constitute the membership which will convene in December for the short and concluding session of the 68th Congress. Upon March 4 a new Congress will come into existence coincident with the beginning of Coolidge's full term. It is upon that body more than the expiring Congress that Coolidge will have to depend for aid and cooperation in carrying out his policies.

The members of the 68th Congress will be chosen next Tuesday. It is, therefore, of importance second only to that of electing Coolidge to send men to Congress who will be in sympathy with the objects, purposes and aims of the administration, and who will have such a realizing sense of their obligations and duties that they will stand resolute and unyielding in their support of President Coolidge. If otherwise his efforts, no matter how energetically put forth or how persistently followed up, will avail little or nothing in accomplishing things designed and needed to advance the national well-being.

The members most needed in the 68th Congress are those whose liberalism will not be watered off by the schemings, allures, blandishments, bluff, bribery or false logic of the blocs and cliques which have selfish ends, not the best interests of the nation, to serve. The Republicans of Fayette and Somerset counties have an exceptional opportunity to show their loyalty and their faith in the future of the nation by electing to the party and President Coolidge. His titular bond and the nation's chief magistrate, as well as to prove that they are not unmindful of the weighty obligations resting upon them as voters.

Representative Samuel A. Kendall who, during the 66th, 67th and 68th sessions served his district and all its people faithfully and with fidelity, was the unopposed choice of his party at the primaries. Having been quired a familiarity with the duties of his office which came only from long experience, such as he has had; being thoroughly conversant with the needs of the district and having intimate knowledge of public affairs, and always staunch and steadfast in his allegiance to Republican principles, Mr. Kendall possesses the qualifications entitling him to the united support of his party.

That support is due President Coolidge. In order to assure him a safe working majority in Congress, it is due Mr. Kendall because his record and fitness make him deserving of further recognition. It is due the 68th Congressional District because its great industrial and agricultural interests require representation in Congress by a man who is in entire sympathy with the needs of those interests and the party policies which are best designed to protect and conserve them.

A vote for Mr. Kendall will, therefore, be a vote for President Coolidge.

OUR REPRESENTATIVES IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.
Voters of the Second Legislative District of Fayette county, without regard to party affiliations, can make no wiser choice at the polls next Tuesday than to cast their votes for Joseph B. Hendon, Jr., Emanuel J. McDonald and Joseph K. Bush.

These men, all highly respected and influential citizens of their respective communities, and identified with activities which have been helpful in promoting the welfare of all the people, have every rightful claim to be returned as representatives in the General Assembly.
Their records in that capacity in the last session have everything to commend them to the favorable consideration of all voters. They were conscientious in the discharge of their duties, consistent in the support of the best measures, and always zealous to guard the interests of their constituents. They deserved and won the respect and confidence of their co-legislators no less than of the people whom they represented.
With these qualifications, and having characters and reputations as citizens which are above reproach,

For Common Sense Toward Business

Philadelphia Record

President Coolidge holds the common-sense American view concerning business in government and government in business. He occupies that middle ground lying between those who would let business go its way unchecked and they who would bind it in shackles of utterly disproportionate government. In his opinion, too much government in business may be as fatal to the national welfare as would the failure of government to keep evil business tendencies in check.

He opposes the economic heresies of LaFolletteism as strongly as he does its political heresies. In his radio address, he dealt vigorously and laconically with the government-ownership proposals that are a part of the LaFollette stock in trade.

The President believes in a minimum of government interference with business. He sees clearly where the excessive use of such powers might lead. Like millions of other Americans, he is fearful that if America ever nationalizes her vast industrial system, with its tens of billions of capital, its other tens of billions in property and its millions of employees, Americans will lose control of that machine, and with it will go the control of their own government. Today, the people are supreme. Their government is their own creature. They own the property of the Nation, and property ownership means power. They have the votes. At their will the government can be kept free from outside influences and independent of the industrial and economic groups, however powerful. It is the will of Americans, as the President says, to keep the government free from outside influences and independent of the industrial and economic groups, however powerful. It is the will of Americans, as the President says, to keep the government free from outside influences and independent of the industrial and economic groups, however powerful.

They do not wish to surrender those powers of control and ownership to it the private property of the individual. For, as President Coolidge reminds them, x x x when the government begins to own the property, it begins to own the people.

He would not, however, take any backward steps in the policy of governmental regulation in the public interest. No business, no matter how great, may ignore that interest or refuse to recognize the public's authority. Size should not be the sole yardstick used in measuring the good or evil of a business. It should be judged by its fitness in competition, by its obedience to the laws of supply and demand, by the service it gives and by the way in which it follows the rules of open bargaining.

"The public trust" is the Coolidge philosophy where public interests clash with those of industry. Where business and industry fail to adapt themselves to wishes of the Nation they must be made to feel the weight of government authority in the future, as they feel it now and have felt it in the past. The lawful and rightful operations of industry need not be destroyed. The weapons of control are in the government's hands and can be used when needed.

This is sound doctrine, as full of common sense as President Coolidge himself. This is the American way, and has been for a generation. It is the way that has made this Nation what it is. The lawful and rightful operations of industry need not be destroyed. The weapons of control are in the government's hands and can be used when needed.

What President Coolidge outlines is not new. He has summed up the dearly bought wisdom of a generation of dealing with big business. On the whole, that way has been good. It has helped make us the greatest industrial power in the world and given employment for every worker with a mind of wages.

There will be no ban on the voting season no matter what the weather may do on Tuesday.

Going to church tomorrow will be your best preparation for the discharge of your duty at the polls on Tuesday.

POMF AND PRIDE.

It may be hard to find the same and never score the goal. To live with want ungratified is trying to the soul. But I would rather struggle along with it than turn my back upon them all to walk with pomp and pride.

It may be hard to arrive to climb, yet never reach the top. To see the pleasure by the way yet have no time to stop. But I would rather never reach the height for which I've tried than have to beat the loneliness which comes with pomp and pride. On there is pain in poverty and hurt in failure's sting. But sooner pain and deeper hurt a swift success can bring. And I would rather while I live, in humbleness abide than turn my old-time friends away to walk with pomp and pride. Copyright 1936 Edgar A. ## Can't Put O. K. on LaFollette's "Wet" Record

Rev. C. T. Wilson at M. B. Conference, Beading, Ill.

It is not without significance that the two great parties have proclaimed their loyalty to the Constitution, and their determination to enforce its provisions, the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, and despite the greatest efforts ever made to select a certain kind of candidate with the stage all set to nominate Al Smith in New York, the wet nullificationist, he was overwhelmingly defeated not because he was a Catholic but because he was a wet, a nullifier of his country's law.

The only party that ignored the question of law enforcement and loyalty to the Constitution was the so-called Progressive Party that has not given us one single word on the subject in its platform, and nominated one of the most pronounced wets in the United States for President, namely Mr. Robert M. LaFollette. This would be alarming to the temperance and church people if there were any danger of Mr. LaFollette getting anywhere. It would have a tendency to make the rest of the country what a part of Wisconsin was during the war period and in peace time since. He has been continuously wet; he has resorted to the most un-American methods of blocking legislation which has cost this country millions of dollars of wasted time while he filibustered. We can't put our O. K. on the wet record of LaFollette. I have watched that man's operations for eight years now in Washington and there is not a man in official life whose methods have been more reprehensible.

The Coolidge Creed

Calvin Coolidge represents the golden mean in American politics. He is as bluntly opposed to reaction as he is to unadvised radicalism. He has fought over-centralization of economic power in the hands of private interests as earnestly as he has fought over-centralization in the hands of government.

In his inaugural address as governor of Massachusetts one finds the substance of the Coolidge creed. "It is pre-eminently the province of the government to protect the weak. The average citizen does not lead the life of independence, that was his in former days under a less complex order of society. When a family lifted the soil and produced its own support it was independent. When in a plant one article, and that in a plant owned by others, it is dependent. It may be infinitely better off under the latter plan, but it is evident that it needs a protection which before was not required. x x x Healthful housing, wholesome food, sanitary working conditions, reasonable hours, fair wage for a fair day's work, opportunity for free, justice speedily and impartially done, are all within the reach of all, are among the objects not only to be sought, but made absolutely certain and secure. Government is not, must not be a cold, impersonal machine, but a human and more human agency, appealing to the reason, satisfying the heart, full of mercy, assisting the good, restraining the wrong, delivering the weak from unjust impositions of the strong."

This is the Coolidge creed.

Railroads and Tax-payers

Harrisburg Telegraph

The government run railroads of Canada paid lower wages than the privately controlled roads of the United States last year and lost $1,000,000 which the taxpayers had to make up.

Do the people of the United States desire Mr. LaFollette to try such an experiment here?

Price of Government Ownership

To acquire the railroads of this country, says the President, would cost the government about $25,000,000,000 if the valuation set by public commissions is accurate. It would mean an annual bond interest of about $1,750,000,000, and an operating budget of about $9,000,000,000. It would mean an increase in taxation ranging from three or four per cent in the industrial states to as high as 40 per cent in the agricultural regions. It would take over a minimum of 2,750,000 employees now in the service of the railroads under private ownership, a staff that in the nature of

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"BORDER INTRIGUE," showing today at the Paramount, presents Franklyn Farnum in one of the best roles of his screen career.

The story and setting is unique in so far as the locale of the last half of the story is concerned, being laid in Sierra Blanca, Lower California, where Spanish custom and costumes still prevail to a very large degree. In order to secure exactness of detail as to locality and construction of buildings, J. P. McGowan, the director, transported the entire cast to San Juan Capistrano, where the world-famed Capistrano mission is located and where the Governor General of Lower California under the Spanish regime had his mansion. The program also includes a chapter of "Into the Net."

Monday and Tuesday Pauline Garon and James Kirkwood will be seen in "The Painted Flapper."

The Soisson

"THE GIRL IN THE LIMOUSINE" the feature picture today at the Soisson, presents Larry Semon in his first big comedy feature.

"The Girl in the Limousine" is an excellent example of what Semon means by the "new type of comedy." It is founded upon a New York stage success which enjoyed a two years' run and contains some of the most humorous situations that have ever been presented upon the screen. In addition to Semon in the leading role, important parts are played by Charlie Murray, another veteran with a large following of admirers, and Claire Adams, who has ventured successfully into comedy after phenomenal success in dramatic pictures.

Monday and Tuesday "The Love Master" featuring Strongheart, the wonder dog, will be shown.

The Orpheum

"THE TROUBLE SHOOTER," with Tom Mix in the stellar role, provides splendid entertainment today at the Orpheum.

With Mix in the cast are Kathleen Key, Earl Fox, J. Gunnie Davis, Howard Truesdale, Frank Currier, Mike Donita, one time big league ball player, Dolores Rousseau, Charles McHugh, and Al Freeman. The picture was directed by John Conway, and Mix unquestionably does the best work of his career, although the role is entirely new to him. He portrays a western "trouble shooter" in the employ of a power company which has strung wires through the snow-capped peaks of the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday May McAvoy and other Paramount stars, will be seen in "The Bedroom Window."

The Arcade

Lewis Brothers Palm Garden Beauties close their engagement in Connelville with three performances today to be followed by the "Passing Show." Reports have been very good on this show. The company carries special settings and a number of very good vaudeville acts. The interesting and entertaining Jack Dempsey will also be seen in another episode of the "Fight and Win" series that has scored so heavily here. The title of the latest picture is "All in the Ocean." It carries more than one good punch from Dempsey and his laugh making gang. The series is probably the best of short subjects ever released by Universal and is meeting with the public's approval everywhere it is shown.

Capsules Which Dissolve Instantly.

Prove Of Great Value

Dreaded System Weakness Which Is Causing So Much Suffering From Stomach, Liver and Different Rheumatic Ailments in New Castle, Disappears When New Remedy Is Used.

"Rheumatism gone" declares Mr. C. R. McGraw, a well known contractor, also relieved of indigestion, constipation and nervousness. "Three boxes of skin tone capsules did me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am not a doctor but when it comes to recommending something to the public for rheumatism and stomach trouble I know that there is nothing better in the world. I was crippled up for over two years with swollen joints and dull pains all over my body, my food failed to digest and caused gas to form bloating out my stomach and pressing upward, often causing fluttering of the heart and making me feel as though I was being suffocated. Skin Tone Capsules relieved me of all these troubles and my address is 52 Sharpville St., Sharon, Pa., and will be glad to tell anyone of the great experience I have had with this wonderful remedy."

No matter how long standing the case might be, no matter what kidney, rheumatic or catarrhal conditions have set in, Skin Tone Capsules has promised to pave the way for quick recovery and return to health and happiness, those who have suffered for years.

Election of Coolidge By Decisive Vote is Forecast by Lawrence

ago, most of the LaFollette votes in the West had been obtained from the Democrats. Every vote taken from LaFollette and given to Davis in the West has made more certain the casting of a plurality vote for Coolidge, because the Republican totals have withdrawn the LaFollette onslaught.

In the West, the Davis campaign has seemed to take on new life in the last 10 days, thousands of voters originally intended for LaFollette, having been brought back to the Democratic ticket. But the margin between the Democratic and Republican parties in the eastern states is so great that the translation of LaFollette strength and increase in the Democratic vote will have no effect on the electoral vote, though it will play an important part in state and congressional contests.

(Monday's dispatch will deal with the probable political complexion of the two houses of Congress.)

There was quite a long silence; then came the muffled tones of the phonograph, rising bell-like through the night in a climbing scale from "Faust." Suddenly the sound wavered, swayed and fell to a wailing of frightened notes as though some one had swept the instrument from its balance. A second later there was the thud of a heavy foot on wood, Trevor's door flew open and the still waiting phonograph was hurled as from a catapult fifteen feet through the air. It fell to the hard-bent round of the patio with a terrific splintering crash, rolled over on one side and was still. Andrea's eyes had been watching it, fascinated; now they swayed and stopped almost with a click of the suddenly arrested muscles.

Between her and the door of Trevor's but stood the towering figure of a man in a white shirt. She could see his great shock of bushy red hair, a bit of his shaggy beard, his enormously broad shoulders and the white gleam of his two hands hanging almost at his knees. He was hatless and dressed in faded blue dungarees many sizes too small for his bulk.

As she watched him he raised his arms in a wide still gesture and began to sing. At the first note, quite unconscious of action, she let the door swing open and stepped out on the veranda. It was the aria from "Faust," the same aria, but oh! how different. The voice of this man was like a huge and glittering serpent of sound that writhed smoothly into the air, challenging the dome of heaven itself. If there was one thing that Andrea knew better than another, it was the accurate valuation of every operatic voice that had sung in Europe during the last decade. She had been taken to Covent Garden regularly before she was out as a matter of education, and no less regularly after her eighteenth birthday, as a matter of matrimonial business.

She knew instantly that this extraordinary apparition in the wilderness was nothing less than the solution of a world mystery. He could be but one man and that a person whose tremendous triumph had been so short as to leave him with fame but without a name. She was hearing the Great Voice—the voice of the star that had shone for a single night; resounded but once through the South, not as swiftly as it had risen and disappeared forever, leaving behind no trace but a memory so short that it had become a recollection almost unbelievable to the few that had heard it.

Now her ears were filled with its name to the exclusion of thought or reason or consciousness of self. She became nothing more than a sentient channel. The many powers of the voice lifted it beyond the common standards of vocal classification and gave it the name and the terror of the superhuman. Its tenacity seemed a thing incorporated apart, an actual substance with beckoning arms and hands. It drew her slowly, steadily, into the quivering moonlight, held her, lifted her face with it toward the sky.

With her breast rising and falling in a rhythmic accompaniment to the mounting rhythm, cheeks pale, lips parted, eyes staring in vain pursuit of the incredible light of sound, she stood, a slim tense figure for once free from that domain that is beyond art, beyond genius and is called quite simply, Gift of God. With a toss and a backward shake of the man's great head, the voice climbed smoothly to that stupendous high G that has wrecked the reputation of many pygmies and brought fame to a daring few. It held and still held until earth and moon and stars seemed little things that passed to listen, obstructed in unimportant courses. Breath suspended until her lungs were near to bursting, Andrea waited for that note to come down into the range of normal hearing, but her mind at least it was destined to hang eternally in the heavens, for the man had turned.

Her eyes knew horror for the first time. The man's face was half obliterated. It had been pined by constant smallpox and destroyed by a worse disease. The nose was gone, leaving an impenetrable pulp of striped cartilage, dried in the air till it was like weathered parchment. One ear had been ravaged in a clean cut so that it rose to a needle-point. That the wounds were healed only added an inextinguishable finity to their repulsiveness.

Only the man's thick red lips and his blazing eyes seemed to have escaped the pestilence. As his startled gaze fell upon Andrea his mouth opened to a wide, soundless laugh. With broad shoulders stooped, his abnormally low-hanging hands curved up like monstrous talons and his shaggy beard wagging to that silent laughter, he advanced upon her, encircled her waist with his fingers and shot her up lightly so that she fell doubled across his back and chest. He gave a low whistle and sped from the crat at an incredible pace. The boat-boy across the veranda and fitted after him.

To Andrea's transfixed terror was added a memory—a fleeting glimpse—of Trevor standing, hands in pockets, before his door. On his face, as she saw—cold, white, unforgetting anger. She thought she cried out to MacCloster to stop, to give her but one moment to explain, to beg forgiveness, to grovel at the feet of the one man in all the world, but no sound came from her lips.

Not until she stood tottering on eranted bottom of MacCloster's host did life come back to her heart and veins and lungs. She threw up her head and screamed as she had never known mortal could scream—a wild, terror-winged wail of desperate appeal. MacCloster snatched tiller from rudder, struck her across the shoulders, knocked her, face down, into foetid bilge-water.

The splash of the stale water produced in her a reaction; it was so nauseating that it momentarily drove thoughts of all other things from her mind. She drew away from it and, crawling to the grating floor of a small cockpit, crouched in the corner formed by the grating and the after thwart. Just to her left, so close that even with head bowed she could not avoid seeing his enormous feet, sat MacCloster.

He talked to her steadily in a muttering undertone, but a long time passed before she began to distinguish one word from another. The muttering swelled slowly to a clear and liquid sound; the voice became like music undefined. But no longer could it drug her senses; she shuddered, cringed, under its terrible caress. Its beauty had become forever leprous.

"Dear, lovely, vile and selfish person," it was saying, "who would have thought it? Who would have imagined that you, a Healer among women, possessed of beauty, youth and a really lovely evening frock, should have come so far for a man? Cheer up! You've found two; one dunghill bantam and—me."

He laughed, not silently and still not quite aloud. It was an extraordinary sound. It evoked in Andrea a chord of memory. It was not the stereotyped laughter of the stage; it was more specialized than that. Then she remembered. It was not the laugh of an individual; it was the clipped, staccato, maddeningly deliberate, "Ha! Ha! Ha!—Ha! Ha! Ha!" of chorus and conspirators in the "Balls in Macchorn."

"I ask you, who could have imagined it?" he continued; then, his voice thickening to a sinister intensity, he added, "I could, — your soft carcass. Women! Fair women! Ha! Ha! Ha! Dreams of fair women! Gurr! Spawns of hell! Pestilence that sleep by day and lurk in the shadows of night and wine. Damnation of the filthy byways of the world, parading in the sweet likeness of God!"

Andrea suddenly looked up, straight into his blazing eyes. "You yourself are speaking," she said in a clear voice. "I am a woman, weak, miserable—never so miserable as in this awful night—but I am a coward. I can forgive not you but what you say, for you cried out just now from a hell infinitely deeper than mine."

The blaze of light in MacCloster's eyes died to a brooding glow. There was something in Andrea's face, some illumination of the clean soul within her, that spoke with a sure voice, louder, more persuasively than words. "The gifts that women may bring in their hands," he said with a whispering sigh, "love, tenderness and honor, rest to the anchored soul! I, MacCloster, had the world at my feet for a single night. Drunk with adulation, drunk with wine, I went out to seek the gifts that women bring in their hands." His voice dropped to a bitter, half-silent note of self-mocking. "Smallpox and worse in a single night, Ha! Ha! Ha!"

The laugh rang out full-throated, thunderous, terrible for the freight of rage that it carried. It rolled and echoed across the silent night like the stroke of a stick of iron. Scarcely had it died to a stillness, when to Andrea's ears came a clear command, calm as the voice of an executioner, "Lie down, Andrea."

Before she could quite obey a rifle spoke, there was the "Phut!" of a bullet as a patch of MacCloster's shirt leaped suddenly, wildly, from his shoulder into the air. Instantly he leaped down and with one hand, picked up Andrea lightly and held her suspended between himself and the shore. "One more, Trevor! You lousy bun-tan!" he belowered. "One more to save me the trouble of wringing the neck of your little chicken!"

As he belowered, Trevor shot again. A look of vacant surprise passed over the face of the punter nearest to Andrea. He crumpled up, sank as though all his bones had suddenly melted and fell, face down, to the bottom of the boat. His pale, relaxed, still with a swift swish into the water. MacCloster promptly placed her on the seat beside him and gave a calm order to the remaining punter, who had paused in terror. He stood up, took the tiller between the tremendous calves of his legs and proceeded to fill and light his pipe. "You see?"

Trevor Shot Again.

Coker Rooters, Young And Old, Join Forces to Back Local Team Today

Orange and Black Crew Will Meet Washington High at 3 o'clock.

ELKS' BAND PARADES

After a week in which every effort has been made to arouse Connellsville to the support of the High School team, the climax was reached this afternoon when a big parade, led by the Elks' Band, marched from the High School building to the ball park. It was made up of students and scores of automobiles.

The aim of the booster committee is not only to "get out the rooters" for Connellsville at games when the team is winning but to support the team when it slips. It is simply the first step towards better football and the most necessary thing for that is support of the right kind by the people of the community.

The biggest material on Coach Leroy's staff will start the game today against Washington. Hank O'Day, Washington coach, is pulling his annual hot-air story about bringing his second team here to play. He always says that, feeling it may have a weakening effect on the Cokers. "Old shen" and "banana oil" were a few of the slang comments of the locals when they heard the report. The boys said if Hank sends his reserves in at the beginning he will soon be glad to get the regulars there to bolster the line-up.

CONTEST FOR SLOGANS AND CARTOONS ON GAME HAS LOTS OF ENTRANTS

The contest for the best cartoon and the best slogan pertaining to the game today between Connellsville and Washington High Schools, conducted by a committee of Rotary boys and Elks members, has attracted great interest in the city. Many persons, some who reside in other cities, took part and many windows in the business district have these cartoons and slogans in them.

In front of these establishments, throughout the day, will be found one to a dozen persons, looking over the assortment. The committee is going to have a big job on its hands in selecting the winner. Prizes are offered for the best cartoon and for the best slogan. The first prize for each is $5 and the second and third prizes in both instances are $2.50 each.

The first National Bank is going to give every Coker player who makes a touchdown some sort of a prize. At first the bank offered $10 for each touchdown, but later this had to be changed because of the fact that should a player receive a reward in cash for such an accomplishment he would become a professional. Under amateur rules, however, an athlete may receive a prize or a medal, not cash.

DUNBAR TWP. WILL MAKE STRONG BID FOR VICTORY TODAY

Best Washington will have to present a formidable defense this afternoon to stave off the pending defeat at the expense of the Dunbar Township High School gridlers. Although the Alverton contingent has been playing a bang-up game the entire season, it will find a strong offensive today to cope with. The Red and Black has been perfecting its special attack, while its backs have developed speed. The game will get under way at 3:30 o'clock.

Danny Frush

Danny Frush, American featherweight, has returned from Europe after a successful tour during which he knocked out Eugene Criqui, former champion, in eight rounds in Paris.

D. T. H. S. Notes

Ray H. Honeberger, teacher at the Monessen High School, coach of the basketball and baseball teams, and assistant coach in football, paid a visit to this high school yesterday. Mr. Honeberger was a football coach here for a number of years, while a member of the faculty. He was accompanied by Charles Haney, another member of the Monessen High School faculty. Mr. Haney is a graduate of this school and is a teacher of History at Monessen. The two teachers gave talks in chapel yesterday.

In concluding the observance of "Better Speech" Week, a debate was held which the affirmatives won. The judges were: Donald J. Sherbondy, "Governor of Rhode Island"; Dr. Allen Lind, "president of Jefferson College of Medicine of Philadelphia"; and Miss Margaret Arnold, "A. M.", teacher of elocution at Emerson School of Oratory at New York City. The decision was unanimous. The debate was, "Resolved that the Moderate Use of Slang is Justifiable." Marie Hochmuth read several selective poems. Misses Phyllis Lou and Catherine Stieck sang several duets. The high school orchestra furnished music for the occasion. The upper department of the glee club, composed of seniors, juniors and sophomores rendered several numbers.

Bound Issue Discussed.
Many questions are arising about the bound issue for the Scottdale schools to be voted on on Tuesday, and a number of very good reasons are being advanced as to why Scottdale should have more school rooms. Grades are having half day sessions, the crowded conditions of rooms, and the need to good rooms where school is being held are some of the arguments advanced. The bound issue was voted on last election and was lost, but since that time the board has gone on record as favoring the use of money for the erection of grade buildings. This, it is thought, will help make the issue popular.

THE PRICE—

IS NOT THE REAL VALUE OF QUALITY MERCHANDISE

It is not infrequent to hear customers remark to our Salepeople "I certainly wish that I had listened to reason and not bought that article just because it was on sale or lower priced."

Men and women are everywhere learning that the true cost or value is not the purchase price, but is determined by the utility and pleasure value of the article. Just as the real value of your car is not determined by size or weight but by the enjoyment and service received, so it is with the actual cost of purchasing quality merchandise.

It is the effort of this store to have every person who leaves this store go out a "Satisfied Customer", satisfied that he or she has obtained the best that quality and style affords, regardless of price.
